The Violin Conspiracy
by Brendan Slocumb
This is a mystery, suspense, thriller. This novel is also about racial discrimination, it's about conscious and unconscious bias. It's about determination, passion and triumph. I cheered for the main character the entire way.

The Hotel Nantucket
by Elin Hilderbrand
A remodeled high-end hotel, the ghost of a chambermaid, a multi-billionaire owner, and a myriad of staff with their own stories, romances and drama make this an enjoyable read. The food and cocktail descriptions were mouth watering. Pull up a beach chair, make your own cocktail and enjoy the show.

Lottery
by Patricia Wood
Sweet, funny, passionate, heartbreaking, and moving - I loved this book! 31 year Perry is slow. He buys lotto tickets with his Gram each week and after she dies, he wins. And then the family comes out of the woodwork. But Perry with the big heart is not a push over.

The Guest List
by Lucy Foley
What a great "twisty" book! Lots of surprising turns, lots of puzzle pieces - a jigsaw of a novel where the ending finally fits in with a satisfying click!
