

Be a Health Scientist!

This summer, Shreve Memorial Library, in partnership with Sci-Port Discovery Center and the Franklin Institute, is giving children in grades 2nd through 6th the chance to be a Health Scientist!

Join us for a free 3-hour STEM program full of hands-on activities about the role of scientists and engineers as they investigate problems related to human health and well-being. The activities encourage scientific practices like making observations and testing hypotheses while exploring questions related to health.

Tuesday, June 24

10 AM - 1 PM

Space is limited. Registration is required.

Children under 10 must be accompanied by a responsible person.

GSK Science in the Summer™ is a fun and free science education program sponsored by GSK, in collaboration with The Franklin Institute.
