Remain

by Nicholas Sparks & M. Night Shyamalan

Wow, Nicholas Sparks and M. Night Shyamalan writing a book together. Who'd have thought? This is a heartfelt supernatural love story with a mystery. It does have a few scares and yeah, have the tissues handy.

LANEY KATZ BECKER

In the Family Way

by Laney Katz Becker

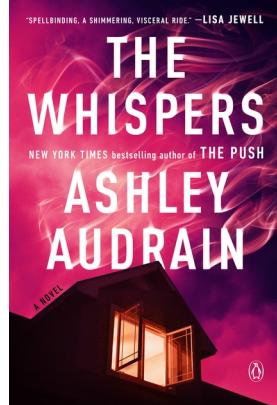

I absolutely loved this novel! I loved the stories of the four women in this community set in the 1960's. Abortion was illegal, unmarried women couldn't get birth control or a credit card or even rent an apartment without a man co-signing. Told through 3 different POVs, I was totally immersed in their lives.

Number One is Walking

by Steve Martin

I really enjoyed this somewhat limited memoir by Steve Martin, told in comic book style. The book reminisces about his movies, actors, actresses and the different directions his career has gone. Steve is a funny guy, and so was this book. Just wasn't long enough for me!

ASHLEY AUDRAIN

The Whispers

by Ashley Audrain

A young boy falls from his window in the middle of the night. Thus starts the story of three families in this close knit community. What a bunch of crappy people! The husbands are jerks, one woman is a horrible mother, one woman is the perfect mother, one woman will never be a mother. And an older woman stands back and observes it all. And the ending.. FANTASTIC!!!!
